

Name _____

Word Count: 148

The Haunted House

James pressed his forehead into the fence so hard that the wires left lines on his skin.	13 17
“Well, let’s go get it,” said Penny, but neither of them moved. Their ball was stuck under the bushes in front of the Haunted House.	30 42
“You know, the old lady makes kids work in the coal mine in her basement,” James said.	56 59
“Well, we’ll have to get it somehow,” Penny said, lifting the creaky latch on the gate.	71 75
But before she could walk into the yard, the heavy door of the house swung open. A little old woman, bent almost double, stepped out of the blackness. She looked around her yard, saw the ball, picked it up, and kicked it over the fence. The ball flew into the air almost as high as the treetops, landing across the street.	89 101 114 129 136
“Wow,” James whispered softly.	140
“Mind if I play?” the old lady asked.	148

Name _____

Word Count: 148

The Haunted House

James pressed his forehead into the fence so hard that the wires left lines on his skin. 13
17

“Well, let’s go get it,” said Penny, but neither of them moved. Their ball was stuck under the bushes in front of the Haunted House. 30
42

“You know, the old lady makes kids work in the coal mine in her basement,” James said. 56
59

“Well, we’ll have to get it somehow,” Penny said, lifting the creaky latch on the gate. 71
75

But before she could walk into the yard, the heavy door of the house swung open. A little old woman, bent almost double, stepped out of the blackness. She looked around her yard, saw the ball, picked it up, and kicked it over the fence. The ball flew into the air almost as high as the treetops, landing across the street. 89
101
114
129
136

“Wow,” James whispered softly. 140

“Mind if I play?” the old lady asked. 148

	Read 1	Read 2	Read 3	Read 4	Read 5	Read 6
Goal Rate
WPM
Errors
WCPM
Accuracy / Reading Rate %

Words Per Minute (WPM); WPM – Errors = Words Correct Per Minute (WCPM); (WCPM ÷ WPM) x 100 = Accuracy/Reading Rate %